

You should leave the do not call law as is. It's a joy to come home and have dinner and not be interrupted with annoying telemarketers. I'm sure there are other American citizens who feel the same way. No more continual phone calls between 830pm and 9pm. I would say 90% of New Jersey signed up for the "do not call" because they don't want to be called. Because of this overwhelming response, the telemarketers find themselves without jobs. I would hate to see anyone without work, but my desire to have them not call should be respected. New Jerseyians were given a chose as to whether they wanted to be called. Choses were made and they should be respected.
